Aging & Disability Resource Centers (ADRCs) are friendly, convenient places where anyone can come for information and assistance regarding programs and services available for older adults and persons with disabilities. ADRC Options Counselors help empower individuals to make informed choices about their long-term care supports and services by providing information about available resources, assisting with planning, and accessing services. Aging & Disability Resource Centers are available to help members of aging and disability communities age 18 years and over, family members, caregivers, professionals, and providers.
